

EDITORIAL

Competitive Social Sciences Research Journal (CSSRJ) has been launched with the purpose to publish the impactful manuscripts in the diverse areas of social sciences. The journal is a peer reviewed journal which publishes both theoretical and applied studies on different aspects of social sciences. The themes of the journal cover the content related to Education, Literature, Linguistics, International Relations, Business Management, Sociology and Media studies but may be expanded to cover all aspects of social sciences if the articles are considered to advance significant contribution to the discipline. The journal aims at providing a platform for academic discussion in social sciences and assist in publishing interdisciplinary content with international collaborations. The journal aspires to bridge the gap between theorists and researchers with the goal of blending innovative theoretical knowledge with practical empirical evidence in order to create better understanding of the disciplines within social sciences. The articles submitted to the journal undergo rigorous process of review both by national and international reviews with the purpose to assess and improve the quality of manuscripts. The journal urges the researchers, scholars, teachers and corporate professionals from across the globe to contribute to contemporary understanding of various social sciences disciplines.

Managing Editor